

Contents

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |     |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Editorial                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 5   |
| In Commemoration of the 120th Anniversary of Engels's Death                                                                                                                                                                                                       |     |
| Richard Sperl: Friederick Engels as a Scientist. The Specificity of his Method of Study                                                                                                                                                                                      | 7   |
| Zhou Sichen: Friederick Engels's Study of Persian Grammar                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 67  |
| Jean-Numa Ducange: Friederick Engels and the First Steps of the French Socialist Movement (1891–1895)                                                                                                                                                                        | 75  |
| On Marx's Excerpts                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |     |
| Rolf Hecker: Thematic Diversity and Contentual Constants in the Subject-Matter of Marx's Studies                                                                                                                                                                             | 89  |
| Carl-Erich Vollgraf: Marx on the Successive Undermining of the Metabolism of Society in Developed Capitalistic Mass Production                                                                                                                                               | 106 |
| Michael R. Krätke: Marx and World History                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 133 |
| Fritz Fiehler: Marx's Theory of Crisis and his cyclical analysis. On Revolution, Overproduction, and Hegemony in the Neue Rheinische Zeitung. Political-Economical Revue from 1850                                                                                    | 178 |
| João Antonio de Paula, Hugo Eduardo da Gama Cerqueira, Leonardo Gomes de Deus, Carlos Eduardo Suprinyak, Eduardo da Motta e Albuquerque: Investigating Financial Innovation and Stock Exchanges. Marx's Notebooks on the Crisis of 1866 and Structural Changes in Capitalism | 194 |
| Rolf Hecker: Marx's Excerpts from Franz Xaver von Hlubek: The Theory of Agriculture in Its Entirety ... (Vienna 1853)                                                                                                                                                        | 218 |
| From the Editorial History of the MEGA                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |     |
| Martin Hundt: Researching the History of the first MEGA – A Thought-Provoking Field of Study for Marx-Engels-Editors                                                                                                                                                         | 230 |

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |     |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Albert Kapr: The Optimal Extrapolation of Texts, SlightlyElaborated as well as Aesthetically Appealing. On the Conceptof the Formation of the MEGA (1975). With Comments byWerner Grahm and Richard Sperl | 239 |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|

Information

|                                                                                                                                                                |     |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Manfred Schöncke: Karl Marx and his Visits to the Resort ofKarlsbad in 1874, 1875, and 1876. Biographical Remarks onthe Extant Correspondence | 259 |
| Zhao Yulan: The MEGA<sup>2</sup> in China                                                                                                               | 284 |
| Contents                                                                                                                                                       | 299 |